

Evaluation and review system

Double-blind review

PASOS. Revista de Turismo y Patrimonio Cultural | PASOS. Journal of Tourism and Cultural Heritage essentially follows a double-blind review system for publishing research and method works.

The double-blind review system means that both the authors' and the reviewers' identities are hidden from the people involved. To ensure this, authors should ensure that their names and institutional ties do not appear in their manuscripts.

Authors should provide all the data requested by the management system (ojs.pasosonline.org) and submit the manuscript (by uploading it onto the system) without their names or institutions.

Other important information to bear in mind when preparing manuscripts includes:

- Using the third person to discuss the author or authors' work
- Replacing references to own work with "(Anonymous, 2007)"
- Not including acknowledgements
- Not including references to research projects and/or sources of funding

Once the text has been accepted for publication, the final version should be submitted (by uploading it onto the system) with all the necessary information correctly included.

If the reviewers deem the manuscript "not publishable", the Editorial Board will notify the corresponding author of the decision and provide the reasons behind it.
